Locating Gamma–Ray Bursts with Hubble, Keck, and the Very Large Array

Keck 10 meter Telescopes (Optical)

Very Large Array (Radio)

Keck or the VLA takes a snapshot picture a few days after the Gamma–Ray Burst...

The Hubble Space Telescope observes months later. The two pictures are tied together using stars in common to both pictures.